THE ADVOCATE.

Peculiarities of Chinese Gordon. Conversation with Gordon was not a colloquy - an interchange of ideas. When interested in a subject he talked, and you listened to his monologue, delivered in a low, monotonous tone, without apparent excitement, for he was very seldom animated. The stamp of earnest sincerity and strong conviction was on all his utterances, but he did not care to argue or discuss any question, and you saw it would be useless to attempt to change any of his opinions or beliefs. Nor did he seem to care much what your appreciation of his views might be. On men's judgments he set but little store.

On one occasion when we were sitting together near a window he rose up suddenly and said, "It is rather dark," and to my great surprise thrust his hand through a pane of glass to open the outer shutter-not remarking that the sash was down. He cut his hand to it, but resumed our conversation, resisting my attempts to see whether any pieces of glass had remained in the hand.

My wife was a great favorite of his, and he would call at Shepheard's hotel to see her shortly before the dinner hour. If engaged in earnest conversation he would entirely ignore the gong for dinner and refuse to dine at the table d'hote with us, but would frequently remain an hour longer, utterly oblivious of dinner and its duties.-E. de Leon.

General Sherman at School. A man who was well acquainted aid s

General Sherman the other Gay The things that General Sherman seemed to have excelled in in later life were those in which he was the most deficient while at West Point. During the time he was a cadet he never was selected as a cadet officer or even a non-commissioned officer, as he was never decined soldierly enough.

"As to the general's standing in his class when he graduated he was seventh in engineering, seventh in ethics, fourth in minerology and geology, twelfth in infantry tactics, eighth in artillery tactics and in deportment he ranked 216 out of a class of 233. Now the idea that a good scholar will not make a good commanding officer is disproved in this case. Had it not been for the general's low average in conduct he would have in all probability been a star scholar; that is, he would have had a star affixed to his name, as the first five men are given this honor. The general's low grade was not due to bad conduct, but to his unsoldierly appearance."-Philadelphia Press.

Taking an Oath.

The topic of kissing the Bible upon the taking of an oath was the subject of a discussion by the Cogburn club the other evening. Nobody seemed to know just why the discussion was started, but several members who have not been beard from lately had pr views upon the subject.

One of the members declared that the kissing habit was a relic of an idolatrous age, when men kissed the mouths of idols to such an extent that they wore them away, and it was believed that he who kissed the mouth of an idol and then told a lie would immediately die. Said he: "The practice of kissing the Bible in courts of justice is more than ten centuries old. In every court or upon the table of every justice you will find a soiled book, upon which you are sworn-a book not soiled by reverent hands in turning its pages, but made unclean and unhealthy by the constant handling of unclean witnesses and the contact of impure lips and mouths."-Utica Observer.

Spiders' Webs.

The webs of those spiders which spin snares out of doors, as the geometrical garden spider, are formed of two sorts of silk, one of which is used for the main cables and the radiating threads, the other for the concentric threads. The latter are thickly studded with minute globules of a viscous substance. which retains the fly, gnat or moth that may blunder against them, while the former are quite dry and harmless. A third kind of silk is produced by the busy little spinner when some such large insect as a wasp has become entangled in the web and threatens to break the delicate structure in its struggles. This takes the form of an enveloping mass, which is suddenly produced, and which effectually prevents any further gyrations on the part of the captured insect.-Cornhill Maga-

A Sermon.

Several gentlemen were standing in the lobby of the Emery hotel the other evening when a rather small sized messenger boy rushed in and handed one of them a telegram. The gentleman glanced at the clock as he signed the blank and said, "Well, I didn't know it was that late; where is time going to, anyway?" Quick as a flash came the reply from the little fellow, "Into eternity," and picking up his book he walked out. The oddity of the re mark struck the men as funny, and they laughed loudly at the little preacher for a moment, and then the laughs died out on their lips and each one looked as though he were thinking of something like that which he had heard when he was a boy.-Cincinnati Enquirer.

Any One Can Make a Paper.

The difficulty is to get some one to read it. I have never yet met a man who has not been born a great journalist, and I have listened to so much advice and admonition on the subject that sometimes I am tempted to think in a moment of vain glorious enthusiasm that even from this source alone I may have learned a little about it all myself. But then I meet another man—who perhaps does something in the line of canned asparagus for a living—and he instantly convinces me that I omplacently wallowing in a sea of and fathomiess ignorance.—New

Trogan, the sire of the dam of DOLAN DENMARK, was an extra fine high-styled horse. by Brignoli; he by Mambrino Chief; 1st dam by Tom Crowder, by Brown Pilot, the sire of Pilot, Jr., the sire of the dams of Jay Eye See 2:10 and Maud S., 2:083. Washington Denmark, the double great grandsize of Do-LAN DENMARK, is one of the most noted of all the great Denmark family: was by Gaines' Denmark; (this horse not only sired fine saddle horses, but sired pacers with records better than 2:25); he by the great Denmark race horse, Blind Billy. Dolan Denmark is wonderful in the perfection of his gaits and has a splendid running walk, the kind business men look for. He will be permitted to serve mares during 1891 at my farm at Sideview,

AT $15.00 TO INSURE A LIVING COLT.

Mares from a distance kept at 5 cents a day. Care will be taken to rent accidents and escapes, but will not be responsible should any occur DOLAN DENHARK took the blue ribbon in his two-year-old form at W hester and the 2d premium at Lexington, Ky., where his brother took til 1st premium with ten or twelve other horses in the ring. Dolar DERMAN stands lower than any other horse with his breeding and qualities in the county, and he is as high bred as any saddle horse in Kentucky and I fear no successful contradiction.

A lein will be retained against all colts and will be enforced for the son money which is due when the colt is forled alive.
